“HOME MAKING” PROJECT
AT THE FERGUSON LIBRARY MARCH 12

STAMFORD, March 1, 2016 – What does home mean to you? Add your inspiring words and artistic touches to the interactive art installation “Home Making.”
Saturday, March 12 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at The Ferguson Library.

“Home Making” is a creative, interactive and personal public art experience that highlights the universal pull that ‘home’ has on all of us, and raises awareness of our community’s need to combat homelessness and provide affordable housing.

The project will be made from hundreds of corrugated cardboard ‘siding’ boards, and people of all ages are invited to come to The Ferguson Library on March 12 to add their personal words and illustrations. The project will move through several Stamford “Home Making” sites to completion, and will eventually be installed in the lobby of the Stamford Government Center for a month.

‘Home Making’ is facilitated by artists Susan Fishman of West Hartford and Elena Kalman of Stamford, in collaboration with New Neighborhoods, Inc. and the Shelter for the Homeless.
For more information, call 203 351-8231.
The Ferguson Library Main Library, DiMattia Building is located at the corner of Bedford and Broad Streets, Stamford.